Toledo at Columbus. Minneapolis at Kansas City. St. Paul at Milwaukee. Staff Correspondence of the Journal. LOUISVILLE, Ky., April 23 .- The score of the opening game was duplicated in today's contest between the Indianapolis ly the Colonels this time possessed the four tallies and Indianapolis the two. Luck was a great element in the game and placed the Louisville team in a position to divide the honors in the first two games with Indianapolis. Pat Bohannan, a young pitcher from the moonshine district of eastern Kentucky, one of Tebeau's finds, was on the slab for Louisville. He was in midseason condition, as he practiced all winter. Only three hits were secured by the visitors off his delivery, and this tells the story of the defeat of Indianapolis, Newlin pitched for the visitors, and of the hits credited to Louisville several were of the Louisville opened the game lucky and finished it in the same way. Kerwin started the contest by hitting to center, the ball taking a bound and going for a home run. The other three runs credited to the Colonels came as a result of lucky hitting The visitors gave Newlin better support than the home team afforded Bohannan, but the Colonels held the rabbit's foot. The two runs scored by Indianapolis came in the fourth inning, the result of a base on balls, two errors and Coulter's two-bagger

NO ROWDYISM.

There was no rowdyism at the game, probably because Louisville started out in the lead and there were never and serious chances of Indianapolis forging to the front. The Louisville club has not taken steps to prevent the crowd from swarming into right field, although President Hickey notified Tebeau that there must not be repetition of the disgraceful conduct seen in the ninth inning of Wednesday's game. The weather was more favorable than on the opening day, but no better ball was stars of the opening game, had nothing to played. The Hoosiers gave Newlin very good support, only two errors being charged against them, and they were on hard chances. Coulter, who was one of the do in his territory. Hogriever made three lifficult catches in right and Jones's two utouts in left were on long files. Tamsett was the bri'llant star of the infield. Sullivan and Martin were charged with Louisville's errors. White's work at first was again a feature of the Colonels' game. LUCKY HOME RUN.

Trouble started in the first inning. Dan Kerwin, Louisville's right fielder, plugged one of the first balls Newlin sent over the plate. The sphere sped to center field and Coulter got in front of it. Just as it looked as if Coulter would stop the ball and hole Kerwin at first, the ball bounded and went by Coulter to the fence, Kerwin making the circuit. All during the remainder of the game the luck that clung to Kerwin was the talk of the spectators. He scored three of the four runs credited to Louisville. Newlin had little difficulty retiring Odwell, Sullivan and Schriever and the first half of the opening inning was over. It required only a few pitched balls to show that Bohannan was in perfect con dition. He is one of the most enthusiastic youngsters ever seen on a ball field and his wonderful pitching was the talk of Louisville to-night. It is said that he practiced most of the winter and spring and when he reported to Tebeau he was in shape to pitch a full game. His good control and ability to mix 'em up pulled him through his first league game with colors flying. Bohannon passed Kihm in the second and Coulter sacrificed. O'Brien drove a red star liner to Martain and Kihm was

Louisville added one in the third. Bohan nan shipped a hard one to Tamsett, who gathered it in and threw to Kihm, Kerwin hit one down the third base line and the ball took a bad bounce just before Tamsett could nab it. Kerwin stole second and went to third on a passed ball. Sullivan's hit scored Kerwin. The Hoosiers were harvested in one, two, three order in the last of the third. A double play in the first of the fourth prevented Louisville from

HOOSIERS' TWO TALLIES. The only two tallies credited to Indianapolis were registered in the fourth. Hogriever coaxed a pass and Fox landed on first as a result of Suilivan's fumble. Bohannon tried to catch Hogriever napping at second and threw to Martin. Hogriever did not have time to return to the bag he went on to third. Martin made a wild throw to Sullivan and Fox also advanced a base. Kihm fouled twice and Umoire Foreman called him out on strikes. It was then up to Coulter to do something in the hitting line and he responded nobly He lifted one to left for two bases, send Hogriever and Fox across the rubber. O'Brien was retired. The two runs tied the score, but in the fifth Louisville added one. Bohannon hit safely, but was forced at second by Kerwin. Sullivan's bunt sent Kerwin to second and he scored on

THE LAST RUN. The last tally came in the eighth. White singled and Clymer dumped one toward Clymer beat Newlin to the bag Kihm threw to Newlin, the latter muffed the ball and White advanced to third. Mar-tine's hit scored White. For a moment in the seventh it looked as if Indianapolis might score, but luck was against the champions. Coulter drew a pass and O'Brien was sent up to sacrince. He bunted a little fly to Bohannou and Coulter was doubled at first. Heydon started the eighth with a single, the secand last hit made by the Hoosiers ut he could not complete the circuit. Both eams retired in one-two-three order in the inth. Jones and Kihm struck out and Coulter flew to Odwell, and the game was

UMPIRE FOREMAN'S WORK. If Umpire Frank Foreman continues to give as much satisfaction as he did in the two games here he will prove one of the most popular officials in the association. He gave both teams an even break and prevented any useless kicking by insisting that the players refrain from criticising his decisions. The Indianapolis players believe he should have called time on Odwell's hit that went into the crowd in the opening game under the rule that provides for the umpire calling "time" when there has been interference. Had this been done Walker would have stayed on second and Odwell on first until the ball was fielded to Kellum. Foreman called the play a blocked ball, which permitted the men to complete the Tamsett had more hot liners to deal with in to-day's game than generally falls to the lot of a third baseman. Two of them got away from him, but they went as hits, as the ball bounced badly. Coulter's hit in the fourth was a beautiful drive to left, and the Indianapolis players hoped it would break the bad luck, but Behannen remained as puzzling as in the earlier innings. Louisville fans still believe that Clymer was struck with a pop bottle in Indianapolis last Labor day. Indianapolis people remember the occurrence and how far from the truth was the story that some one in the stand hurled a bottle at Clymer. In Louisville they throw bottles, hats, rocks, Casey, 3.....1 3 2 1 3 Mor'sey, 2...0 1 1 and if no heavy missile core hats, rocks, Casey, 3.....1 3 0 1 1 Corcoran, s.2 1 2 bleacherites take aim at the champions and hurl quids of tobacco at them. Mournful Reflections on the Downfall of a Bluegrass "Bad Man." New York Sun.

The art of historical criticism or paradox has been carried to such a point that nothing is but what is not. All the good men were bad and all the bad men good. Caesar Borgia was a light of the Y. M. A. Alexander was the founder of the American Peace Society. Casanova was an ascetic. Ezzelino da Romano was an altruist. Old Parr died in infancy. Captain Kidd established the doctrine that neutral ships make neutral goods. Bluebeard was an advocate of woman suffrage. One by one the vapors of illusion vanish. All history is a historical novel. Nothing is real but time tables; and they are hieroglyphics which no man understands, least of all a railroad man. Such is the vanity of knowledge. Yet in the fading world of romance once called history, there is one bright figure which we are loath to lose. We have loved the Kentucky colonel, the splendid militant colonel, in whom the crusader and the chevalier were reinforced at need by the Bad Man from Bitter Creek. Gentle to his friends as a spring lamb chop, terrible when aroused as an army with banners, the Kentucky colonel was as picturesque as a pirate and as fiery as Bardolph's nose. Sudden and quick in quarrel, punctilious to the minutest point of honor, ready to take the law into his own hands, flerce, fulminant, instant, he was a cross between dynamite and chain lightning, half horse and half alligator. He cut off his plug of terbaccer with a glittering bowie knife. His pistols were always loaded and he was frequently loaded himself. He gloried in "personal difficulties" with other members of "prominent families." He was a series of explosions. The base hands of bumbailiffs and other myrmidons of the law never dared to touch his sacred per-There was our old friend Colonel Jack Chinn, the beautiful and the brave, the gallant and the gay, as fine a man and colonel, sir, as ever stepped in shoe leather. stitutions. He was known as a chief source of heat and motion. The colonel's warlike virtues do not thrive by transplantation. A few days ago he left the old Kentucky shore and encamped in a Cincinnati hotel. There must e something in the stolid, beerful atmosphere of the Queen City that is poison to a centucky constitution. The colonel had bought on credit certain goods of a Cincinnati firm. The sordid tradesmen, not knowing that they were insulting the tender sensibilities of one of nature's noblemen, sent a Senegambian messenger to the colonel to ask for the money. The colonel roared like an old Greek hero, and the Moor fied in fright. Then legal proceedings were begun, and two constables-two mere and common constables, Critchell and Timberlake-were sent to the colonel's encampment to serve an attachment. They found the hero "only partly dressed," in his shirt sleeves, we presume, and eating his supper "quietly." The quiet of that patriarchal scene was soon torn by war. The constables told their business, colonel started to throw them out. stable Critchell repelled the colonel's attack "with a well-directed right, which sent him sprawling over the supper table." Then Colonel Jack visited his park of artillery. Let our dispatch paint the awful

"The constable was just as quick, and while Critchell held him Timberlake relieved him of his two guns, six-shooter magazine revolvers, and bowie knife. The constable threw the knife on the floor, but departed with the guns to satisfy the claim. Chinn's clothing was torn off and the bed The enemy marched off with the artillery. They left him his bowie knife in contempt. The odds were all in the colonel's favor. Two to one, and those two constables! The colonel had two guns and knife. If he had been as formidable as he looks, would he not have slain not merely two, but one hundred men, if he could have found them? It should take at east one hundred constables to make one olonel, and yet two of those despised, unwarlike plebeians captured Colonel Jack's We record these facts, if facts they be with sorrow, almost with shame. Colonel Jack Chinn has been on a war footing for years. He is the most terrible armored cruiser in the Kentucky fleet. If two constables can carry off his guns, two constables can carry off any Kentucky colonel's guns. Our last illusion ceases to illude. The igniferous Kentucky colonel is a Quaker, a disciple of Tolstoy, a suckling dove. The age of colonelcy is gone, thousand people saw William Gerst's Fore and Aft, by George Kinney-Topsail, win the Cumberland Derby, one and one-eighth miles, at Cumberland Park to-day from I. H. Stevens's Barca, in the good time of 1:55%. John J. Greener's Postmaster Wright, after leading into the stretch, finished third. The race was worth $3,060 to the winner and was a beautiful contest. The Tennessee Breeders' Association opened its tenth annual spring meeting under most auspicious conditions. The weather was fair and bracing and the track in prime condition, while the crowd, was far beyond that usually seen on a business and were unable to accommodate With the heavy business done the books Clingman is claimed by both Milwaukee | had much the worst of it, four pronounced and Columbus. President Hickey ordered favorites making good, two of them, Whisky King and Fore and Aft, being especially well backed.

The Derby was the fourth event on the card and five candidates accepted the issue. The local money poured in on Fore and Aft, though Postmaster Wright, also owned in Nashville, had a strong following. Reservation, with Bullman up, enjoyed a light play and the others were neglected. Away to a pretty start, Sinner Simon went out to show the route with the favorite back in fourth position. Passing the stand Sinner Simon and Postmaster Wright were heads apart with Reservation lapped on them and Fore and Aft two lengths back. Going on Laudry sent Simon farther out, with Reservation quickly following the two drew away. Then in the back stretch Barca joined in the chase. Simon had shot his bolt and at the half Postmaster Wright had command, a half length before Reservation, who was neck and neck with Barca. The favorite was fourth, two lengths away, but rounding the turn Henry began to make his play. The the flow of blood had increased Mr. Corcolt was cut off several times and finally at rigan demurred to the suggestion of his the head of the stretch Henry took him to | trainer that a physician be summoned, but the outside and he assumed the lead, with the latter finally telephoned for Dr. Frank Barca at his head and Postmaster Wright closing in. HANNA AND THE PRESIDENCY.

Declares that He Will Support Roosevelt on McKinley Policy Basis.

Collier's Weekly.

Senator Hanna has declined the presidency. He was implored to give his friends permission to go ahead and secure the Republican nomination for him in 1904, and he refused to accede to their request. All this took place about six months ago. Mr. Hanna was in New York for the purpose of taking a yachting tour with his friend Griscom, of Philadelphia. The weather was so unfavorable that the ocean voyage was cut short, and the senator from Ohio, for the first time in many years, had a few days' leisure on his hands. He improved the opportunity to renew acquaintance with quite a number of his old friends in Gotham. Among them were the biggest financiers and corporation managers in the country. Alsett, 100 (J. Walsh), 4 to 1, second; Jerry most every one of these men asked Mr. Hanna to stand for the Republican nomination in 1904. Their argument ran like this: "The business people of the country do not want Roosevelt again. They admire many of his good qualities, but they do not trust his judgment. We live in constant fear that he will involve the country in trouble. There is just one man who can defeat the President for the nomination. You are he. If you will consent to make the stand we will throw all our influence in your favor. If you are nominated we will help elect you. If the President is nominated for a second term and the Democrats put up Justice Parker, or former Secretary Olney, we may be compelled, in self-defense, to support the Democratic candidate. We are not afraid of a Democratic President because the Senate, and probably the House, will remain Republican for some years to come. But if you will make the race the business men of the United States will feel content within the Republican party. You will be sure of election. The President is not sure. It is your duty to consider the welfare of the party and of the country above all

> Not one great man, but a dozen men, each one of them at the head of great corporations, controlling millions of money and with many thousands of employes, talked in this vein to the senator from Ohio. But Mr. Hanna would not yield. He declared he was not a candidate and would not be candidate. He said he had told President Roosevelt that he was for him, and he was a man of his word. He told his friends he had given his promise to Roosevelt when Roosevelt announced to the world that he platform," Mr. Hanna had said to Mr Roosevelt, "I am with you. My advice to you, Teddy-Mr. President-is not to give a moment's thought about a second term, but to devote all your energies to making a success of your first term.

Perpetual Jim Howard.

Nebráska State Journal It might look as though the common-wealth of Kentucky had Jim Howard cinched this time for good, so voluminous and damaging is the evidence against him on this, his third trial for the killing of Goebel. But Jim is too good an electioneering document to be wasted, and doubtless the "court" will manage to make some more rulings of so ungodly a character that he will be up for another trial fresh as a daisy by the time another political campaign is due in Kentucky with another who were taken into full confidence by Governor Taylor and Secretary Powers. Goebel murder trial is a perennial source of satisfaction and joy to the Democrats of the Bluegrass State, and there is no enof the people who can be found who know all the particulars and helped in the killing, and who will come forward with oodles of estimony for a small consideration. It is somewhat expensive to the State to try Jim every year or two, but it pays the party. Roosevelt Not Qualified.
